SEVERAL EARLY CULVER LETTERS
Contributed by Miss Eunice Hunt, Mason, Michigan

The first two letters in this group were written about 1838 by Sally Culver of Springwater, Livingston Co., N.Y. to her children who had moved to Henrietta, Jackson Co., Mich. and Manchester, Washtenaw Co., Mich. The final letter by Ezra Culver was written to his sister, Mrs. A. Young, at Henrietta after he had started on a journey to the western gold fields. (See Michigan Pioneer and Historical Collection, Vol. VII, p. 67.) The letters are now in the possession of the family of Lydia Union Haire.

Dear and affectionate Children

I take my pen in hand a trembling to inform you that through the goodness of God that we are all so as to be about. I must inform you that Stoddard has been sick all winter, he went out to Cauga (Cayuga) about the first of November on horseback and it was cold riding and he took a very heavy cold, he got home on Wensday and he did not give up work until the Wensday then was the time he wrote you the letter. We sent for Doctor Grey and he said he was in a critical situation. There was four weeks he did not go out doors. Now he is able to be about but cannot do anything that is hard. He has gone to Dansvill today to get his money changed.

I wanted to send you one hundred dollars in Specie but Edward did not like to carry it. I hope you will make good use of your money Lydia. I want you should get you apiece of land and take a deed in your own name if you can. You wrote you should like to be here and eat some apples and drink some cider. We did not make any cider. We have got good apples and I would willingly give up my part if you could only be here. Abigail do you not recollect that when you was a washing dishes in the buttery that I ask you if you would not come home next spring and you said you would. I now think that you talk discouraging. You wrote that you thought that you should work out some next summer. I think by you as you do by me that there is no need. I think there is enough work here, perhaps we can take in some weaving. We have got very handsome flax this winter. I some expect we will have to let it out to dress but I do not like to it is so good. We have not had but thirteen pounds out.

I want you and Lydia to write as soon as you get this letter and write everything you can think of. I want you should tell me how your neck does and how you are calculating your business. I have sent you cloth for each of you an apron. It is not very handsome but it is good. Abigail I have sent you my black silk apron for I think my linen ones is as good as I want. Katherine has sent that small piece to Lydia Mariah. I have sent a pair of sox that I want you should let Amasa have when you can. I have sent you eleven pounds of butter and I want you should divide it and that the one that Abigail lives with to let her have her share.

I have scribbled so mutch that you will never read it. You need not ever expect to here mutch from us if there does not anybody but Stoddard write. He says he cant think of anything to say. I think I must close my letter by remaining your affectioate Mother

Dear children,

I take it as a great privelige in having a chance to write to you once more to let you know that through the goodness of God we all of us enjoy a comfortablt state of mealth at present and I hope that these lines will find you all in good health and prosperity, which is the best of heavens blessings.

I received your letter with great satisfaction in finding that you were all well except Lydia. O Lydia I have thought a great deal about you and your health. O dear children it does appear as if I could not have it that you must be so far from me, but I hope we shall see one another again if we live. I do want to see you all and hear how much you like the new country and to see your children for I think you must have something prity nice.

I must write a little spinning work. Katherine has wove one peace twenty eight yards of narrow cloth for bed ticken and now she is getting a peace in fifty yard long in a four and thirty. Then we have got a peace that will be thirty yards that will go in an eight and thirty.

I am agoing to make five yards for pantaloons along with Mrs. Knowles and I am agoing to make an undertick. O dear Abigail how I wish you was here. I want you should come along with Mr. Lamony unless you think you can do better there. I want you should live where you can enjoy yourself best. I hope you will excuse my writing for my hand is verry unsteady. So I subscribe myself

Your Affectionate Mother

Respected Relatives

I once more Through the Blessings of divine Providence am permitted to write a few lines to you. My health is about as usual I think rather better than it was when I last wrote.

Catherine was married on the 19th of March to Lewis R. Perkins and went to keeping house the second day after. They are living on Mr. Shearers farm this summer. I came from there today. Emerline I suppose you would like to know how Mr. Perkins looks but I do not know as I could describe his looks to you perhaps Catherine could if she was here but she is not and so I guess you will have to come and see for yourself.

The object of my writing this now is to ascertain something about the pills and plaster which you sent for. I had written to Sherwood before I received your letter to have him send me the medecine and that I would send him the money when I received it from you. I have been waiting for it supposing that when he received your letter with the money he would send the plaster but none has come yet.

I like the country about here very much. I saw two deers pass across Parleys wheat the other morning. Edwin if you was here you would like to go down by the Davison mill pond and to Lohey Ocomosses wigwam and see Mrs. Lohey feed her young bear. The way she does it is she fills her mouth with porridge and holds him up to her and he sucks her under lip and she lets it out in his mouth by degrees. There has been more Indians about here the past year than any other year since Parley has been here. There is plenty of ducks on the mill pond. I went over the other day to try to kill some but they have to many eyes for me. Abram has his house nearly finished. I should like to see you all very much. I finish by subscribing myself

Your Affecionate Brother

Dear Relatives

I spend a few moments in writing to inform you of my whearabouts & prospects. We are 15 miles east of Dixon's ferry on the fox river 310 miles from you. My health is good & prospects favorable. Teams doing well considering the roads. We found very good roads for the time of year until we struck Illinois since that they have been very bad. Illinois is one vast prairie interspersed with groves of timber. They are a mucky loam soil & the roads very bad but the prospect for better roads ahead. We have been out of sight land many times on the prairies. Yesterday I saw a horse power saw mill propelled by seven horses they told me they sawed a thousand feet a day. There is a mill pond in sight of whear we are now that is 8 miles long & seven wide. Horse feed is from 18 to twenty five cts. Illinois is great for corn and oats. I have seen thousands of bushels as we passed through the country. We met a man yesterday that had been to Council Bluffs moving some Indians, he says the highest he paid for horse feed was 30 cts. which differs materially from the stories that we have heard of corn being four dollars.

The emigration is large to the land of gold. They tel me here that most of the emigration that has passed here is from Michigan. The emigration from this section is just commensing to move, we overtook a company from Lansing yesterday that started the Monday before we did consisting of 9 men & 2 women. They tel me that Stillman is about 2 days ahead. There is a great many families crossing the plains this season. There were two families stayed where we did last night, there were seven wagons & twenty two person stayed here. I must draw my scribbling to a close, so good day

SOME DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT BARTLETT, EARLY SETTLER OF THREE NEW ENGLAND TOWNS, CAMBRIDGE, MASS., HARTFORD, CONN., AND NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

Compiled by Olive M. Searle of Westfield, Mass.

The problem of the ancestry and of the time and place of the birth of Robert Bartlett is complicated by the fact that four early settlers of New England bore that name. It has been said that he was the son of John Bartlett of Cherrington, Warwick, born in 1603, but without evidence. (D. A. R. Magazine, January 1950). His descent from a Richard Bartlett, born in Wiltshire, England, in 1575, is not supported. (Western Massachusetts, a History, 1926.

Savage is the authority for the statement that he was in Cambridge in 1632, and that he probably came in the "Lion", arriving on September 16.

There is no contemporary record of his arrival in Hartford, Conn. However that is true of most of the early settlers of that town. It is known that the earliest emigrants from Newtown (Cambridge) came in 1635, settled on the north side of the Little River (a tributary of the Great River, the Connecticut), and became the North Side Plantation, with their records kept in the North Side Book. The main body of settlers came with the Rev. Thomas Hooker in 1636, and settled on the south side of the Little River. Very probably there was a South Side Book but both it and the North Side Book have disappeared. At a town meeting of Jan. 3, 1639/40, a list of proprietors was adopted, the first record in which the name of Robert Bartlett appears. The significance of this is explained by Love in "The Colonial History of Hartford (1935) as follows: "The common statement that has been made concerning many an honored ancestor in Hartford, is that he was 'an original proprietor in 1639'. What does this mean? Not necessarily that the man shared directly in the purchase of the town's lands from the Indians. It does not affirm that he was surely among the first settlers of the plantation. There is documentary evidence that some of the proprietors were not. Nor does it prove that his social standing was superior to that of some who received grants of land by the town's courtesy. It means that in 1639, when. . . . the body of proprietors was constituted to determine who had a right to share in the undivided lands, the man named was found to have been a legal inhabitant, and to have borne by taxation upon his land or estate, for a greater or less period, a share in the plantation's financial burden." So we can be sure that Robert Bartlett had been living in Hartford for some time before 1640.

In this list of 1639 the proportionate share of each proprietor is indicated by a number of acres, varying from 160 to 6, with slightly more than half of the 95 men listed receiving 24 or less. Robert Bartlett's share was 8 acres. At this time the lands of each proprietor were listed and described with three "parcells belonging to Robert Bartlett and to his heires forever." The fact that these were all on the south side of the Little River would seem to indicate that he was not among the very first settlers. His homelot was on the west side of a highway, west of what is now Lafayette St.

The question of when Robert Bartlett came to Hartford bears upon the birthplaces of his children. Only for the youngest, Deborah, do we have a record. She was baptized at Hartford, 18 Mar. 1646. Since the record begins in 1645, that does not help with the other children. From his gravestone in the Old Burying Ground at Northampton, we know that Samuel died 26 Feb. 1711, "in the 73 year of his age", that is, he was born in 1640, after his father moved to Hartford. With children coming along about every two years, it is possible that Abigail and Nathaniel were also born in Hartford, not in England or in Cambridge as has been stated without evidence.

Robert became a freeman, 10 Apr. 1645. Soon he was in trouble - "June the last, 1646, Robert Bartlett, for his grosse misdemeanor in slaundering Mris. Mary Fenwicke, is to stand on the pillory Wensday, during the lecture, then be whiped & fyned five pounds & halfe yeares imprysonment." Even this harsh punishment did not teach him to think before he spoke - "Ro: Bartlett, for giving ill counsell to the prysoners, advising they should not peach Drake, is to be whipped, August the 21st, 1646". ("Sa: Drake is fyned five pounds for concealing Jo: Neure (?) when he brake pryson). This impulsiveness was to get him into trouble again and again.

He was not under a cloud for too long. At a town meeting the 11 Feb. 1649, "Robartt Bartllett" was one of four "chosen to sarch the chimneys". By 1651 he had acquired land on the east side of the Connecticut (the settlement of Hartford began on the west side). At town meeting, 12 May 1651, "it was ordered that all thos that have swamp on the est side of the great river shall mayn their ffenc the bredth of their Lotts next the woodland: William philips and Robertt Barttlett shall have power to call out men to make the Fenc apertaining to the swamp." Long after he moved to Northampton, on 11 Sept. '65, the Townsmen of Hartford voted to pay Robert Bartlett fifty shillings for land on the east side of the Connecticut.

During the year 1652 plans for a new settlement originated in Hartford. In May 1653, twenty-four persons, ten, including Robert Bartlett, from Hartford, petitioned the General Court of Massachusetts for liberty to "plant, possess and inhabit Nonotuck" (now Northampton). The attractions of this site are described by Maverick, writing in 1660, "Above Springfield. . . is another towne at first Intended but for a trading house with the Indians, but the gallant Land about it hath invited men to make it a Towne. The Connecticut River is a greate River before ye Towne, bigger than the Thames above bridge." The petition was acted upon promptly and favorably. When the proprietors met to plan the settlement, Robert Bartlett was chosen one of a committee of five "who shall have power to receive such inhabitants as they shall judge fit for carrying on the design."

He was also among the first settlers to take possession of the new plantation in the spring of 1654. One chronicler states that when the settlers cast lots for their homes, the first choice fell to Robert Bartlett. He chose land on the west side and at the lower end of what is now Pleasant Street. For many years this was known as Bartlett Street. The land extended from the street to the Mill River. A part of this homestead remained in the family until 1773.

For the first year the settlers were busy building their own homes and a meeting house for the community. No record now exists of the petition for incorporation but it was acted upon at the session of the General Court in May, 1655. By this act Robert Bartlett was appointed the town's first constable, a more important officer at that time than to-day. It is not known how long he served but from incidental records it is known that he was constable in 1664 and in 1666. On May 21st 1664, Joseph Parsons was summoned for resisting the constable, "and for that it appears in the examination of things that the said Joseph Parsons & the Constable Robert Bartlett had some scuffling in the business where blood was drawn between them they are each find ten shillings." In addition to his duty of maintaining the peace (without scuffling), the constable was responsible for "gathering the rates" and in 1666, it was ordered that Robert Bartlett and John Liman pay in all the rates by the next 10th April or "forfeit to the towne twenty shillings for each of them beside the damages."

Robert Bartlett was not long in the town before he fell under the censure of the law for in May, 1656, the General Court ordered a hearing because he had "committed a misdemeanor". Nothing is known of the outcome of this investigation but the misdemeanor can not have been important to his fellow citizens, as the next year he was chosen one of the townsmen.

The first court ever convened at Northampton was held on Sept. 28, 1658. Two complaints were brought against Robert Bartlett. "Thomas Roote Complaynd against Robert Bartlett in an action of the Case for strikinge his the said Thomas his wife with a long stick to prjudice. Robert Bartlett acknowledinge his offence in the Court Both Plaintiffe & Defendt agreed about the matter between themselves." Imagine the disposition of a woman who could so provoke even a quick-tempered neighbor! Could it be that Thomas secretly sympathized with Robert? "Edward Elmer Complaynes ag't William Holton & Robert Bartlett in an action of defamation". The weighty decision was in part, "the speaking of a mans Faylings & infirmities may be disorderly & yet not a defamation . . . though in regard to some blameworthy carriage found in Goodm Elmer about those matters, we lay noe damage upon the Defendants to paye ye plaintiffe."

One act of the townsmen during his first term was to order the building of a boat to act as a ferry across the Connecticut. Because his house was the nearest, Robert Bartlett was made keeper of the key. Much more important was the action of the town to obtain a minister. Choice fell upon the Rev. Eleazer Mather, son of the Rev. Richard Mather of Dorchester.

When Mr. Mather came to Northampton, the town placed at his disposal lands contributed by the individual inhabitants. This land was to be used by him to attract new settlers whom he considered desirable. Robert Bartlett gave five acres of meadow land.

Mr. Mather served for three years before "the Church was gathered at Northampton, 18. 4. 1661." On this date a covenant was adopted and signed by 63 persons, including Ann Bartlett, wife of Robert. Under the date "14th 5m 61", the record adds six others, among them "Robert Bartlett, excommunicated and re-admitted." Whatever his offense, he was chosen within a month as a member of the committee to build a new Meeting House. In February, 1663/4, "The selectmen made a Rate for the new meettinge house and comited it to the constable," to the amount of 115. 08. 09. When the occasion arose for assigning the seats "Goodman Bartlett" was a member of the committee. "The rules yt they are to attend in this work are these Age, Estate, Qualifications only Respecting ye commissioned officers & imptiality."

When the calling of a minister was under consideration, the town voted that 41 acres of land be "sequestred for a perpetuall standing lott for the ministry". Robert Bartlett was one of three chosen "to measure outt" the land and "to see that the 41 acres of land be recorded to the trew intent of the grante". When, in January, 1663, the town voted to give this land to Mr. Joseph Eliot, assistant to Mr. Mather, Robert Bartlett was one of those who signed (with his mark) a protest against this action. Evidently this protest was effective for when, in 1825, a second church society was formed, this tract became the property of the First Parish. This fairly valuable meadow land, as originally laid out, except that the meandering of the Connecticut River has reduced the 41 acres to 34, is still a source of income to the First Parish. After the death of the first minister on July 24, 1669, "Robert Bartlete" was one of those "chosen by the Towne and Empowred toe ackt in all matters in reference toe the settlement of Mr. Solomon Stodard (Stoddard)".

In 1672/73 a subscription to Harvard College was taken in Northampton, to which Robert Bartlett contributed 4 bushels of wheat, valued at 12 shillings.

At a court held in Springfield, September 24, 1667, Robert Bartlett was the plaintiff. "3 lads are accused by Robert Bartlett for that they gott into his house two Sabbath dayes when all the family were at the Publicke Meeting . . . they did ransack about the house & took away . . . 24 shillings in silver & 7s. in Wampam with the intention to run away to the ffrench". The Court had no doubts about how to treat juvenile delinquents but ordered that they "shall be well whipt" as well as paying, according to the law, three times what they had taken.

With the outbreak of King Philip's War, a palisade was erected around most of the town. While some lives were lost and houses burned, no concerted attack was made upon the palisade until March 14, 1676. The Indians succeeded in breaking through in one spot near the home of Robert Bartlett and he was one of the four persons killed. He was hastily buried where he fell. In January, 1681, his son Samuel was granted "a small parcell of Land, so much as is Comuenient and needful to compasse his father's grave be in the common highway".

The first record known of Ann, wife of Robert Bartlett, is her signature to the church covenant, 18. 4. 1661. Neither her maiden name nor the date or place of her birth and marriage are known but something is known of her character. In 1656, Joseph Parsons charged Sarah, wife of James Bridgman with slander for calling his wife a witch. Neighborhood gossip seems to have been the start of the story. Mrs. Robert Bartlett disagreed with the rest of the gossips, "because she was intimate with the said Mary Parsons." The court found Mrs. Bridgman guilty of slander and ordered her to make public retraction. Ann Bartlett did not long survive her husband, dying on July 3, 1676. Another side of her character appears in her will, with its concern for her "infirm" son, Nathaniel, and for a favorite, twelve year old granddaughter, Hannah Stebbins, as well as her very feminine interest in the distribution of her wardrobe:

> I give and bequeath to my Son Samuel my white faced oxe; to my Son Nathaniell the youngest blake cow;

CHILDREN: of Robert(1) and Ann( )BARTLETT, perhaps born at Hartford, Conn., order of birth not known:

2.	i.	Samuel,	b. 1640;	d. 21 Feb. 1712, at Northampton
3.	ii.	Abigail,	b. ;	d. 15 July 1689; at South Hadley
	iii.	Nathaniel,	b. ;	d. 8 dec. 1691, unmarried; "an infirm man".
4.	iv.	Deborah,	bp. 8 Mar. 1646;	d.

SAMUEL(2)BARTLETT(Robert(1)), only son of Robert(1) and Ann( ), who left descendants, was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1640 and died at Northampton, 26 Feb. 1711, "in the 73 year of his age." On 26 Mar. 1661, he took the oath of fidelity.

At the next session of the county court after the death of his father, 26 Sept. 1676, "Sam'll Bartlett presented the weake & unfitt state & condition of Nathaniel Bartlett, his brother, to manage yt portion & Estate"(to which he became legatee by his father's will). Samuel and Medad Pomeroy were appointed overseers.

Like his father, Samuel held the office of constable. Also, like his father, he did not always think before he spoke, for at a session of the court, 26 Mar. 1678, John Parsons, was plaintiff against him in an action "for Slander & defamatiom". The action was withdrawn.

In 1679 a lead mining company was formed in Northampton with Samuel Bartlett as one of the shareholders. This project did not prove a financial success. There is no mention of this stock in his inventory. A more successful venture was started in 1687, when, at his request, the town granted him the privilege of the Manhan river for two miles as long "as the mill stands and goes." Two years later he was given 30 acres of land for the mill on the south side of the river. At the time of his death he owned, not only the grist mill but also, a fulling mill and a saw mill.

He m. (1) 27 Apr. 1672 Mary Bridgman, daughter of James and Sarah, b. 5 July 1652. She died suddenly in August, 1674, and at a session of the court, 29 Sept., her husband and father entered a complaint of witchcraft. In spite of her vindication in the scandal trial eighteen years before, Mary Parsons was again accused. The court at Springfield had no jurisdiction in the case of a capital crime but the evidence they gathered was sent to Boston and at a Court of Assistants held the 2d of March 1674 Mary Parsons was indicted. She was held in prison until a session of the court 13th May 1675. At the trial she appeared in her own defense and the jury found her not guilty.

Samuel Bartlett was soon complaining in another case of suspected witchcraft. In March, 1678/9, his brother-in-law, John Stebbins, died suddenly. At the County Court held in April, Samuel presented the evidence that he had gathered pointing to witchcraft as the cause of his death. This evidence was sent to the Court of Assistants at Boston but no further action was taken.

He married (2) about 1676, Sarah Baldwin, daughter of Joseph of Hadley. She died 17 Jan. 1717, aged 66.

In 1705 he was on the committee to build a poor house for the town.

His will, dated 25 Feb. 1711-12, proved 24 Mar. 1712, bequeathed to his wife 1/3 of his estate and, instead of the usual double share to the eldest son, gave Samuel one and three-fourths parts with the remainder to be divided equally among the seven other sons. This poses some problems in fractions. When his grandson, Jonathan Clapp, made his will, he bequeathed 5/24 of the sawmill to one son and 6/24 to another. Samuel's inventory shows that in addition to the three mills, he owned three houses with land, as well as land in nine of the towns divisions, also land at Hadley. The estate was valued at 1477 pounds.

WALTMAN-ARIS-RYAN BIBLE RECORD

Contributed by Mrs. Raymond Millbrook

These records were taken from a Martin Luther New Testament, printed in German script and owned by C. J. Husted of Grand Ledge, Mich. The records are written on the blank leaves in the front and at the end of the book. The book is dated 1762 or 1782, this date being almost illegible. On the fly leaf is written, "William Waltman, his Bible, God give him grace therein to look, and when the bell for him does toll, may this be his reward in heaven." On the blank leaves in the back this rhyme is written:

"William Waltman is my name
Germany is my nation,
Philadelphia is my dwelling place,
And Christ is my salvation.

When I am dead and in my grave,
And all my bones are rotten,
Its this you see to remember me,
Lest I should be forgotten."

42 JACOB HOUTZ, (son of Philip Lawrence), b. abt. 1766, prob. Berks Co., Pa.; d. 1840, Portage Twp., Ottawa Co., Ohio; m. abt. 1787, Margaret _____, b. by 1770; d. after 1839. Jacob Houtz is thought to have been a private in Capt. Duffield's Co. of Franklin Co., Pa. Militia, in 1786. He was a resident of Antrim Twp., with land in both Antrim & Montgomery Twps., Franklin Co., Pa., between 1791 and 1807. Jacob and Margaret Houtz transferred their Franklin Co. land to Jacob Stover in deed dated 14 Apr. 1806. They went to Columbiana Co., Ohio, in 1808, settling in Green Twp., which eventually became part of Mahoning Co. By 1818, Jacob had acquired all except the n.e. quarter of sec. 12, in Green Twp., by U.S. patents. In 1824, he received patent for 160 acres, n.w. quarter sec. 17, Plain Twp., Wayne Co., Ohio, while still resident of Columbiana Co., but transferred this Wayne Co. land to Peter Troxel in 1832, with Jacob Houtz, Jr., witnessing. Still in Columbiana Co. in 1829, Jacob acquired the n.w. quarter of sec. 25 in Perry Twp., Stark Co., Ohio, from John Short, transferring this land to Jacob Houtz, Jr., 30 March 1835. Jacob and Margaret provided for their other children, and some grandchildren, in Columbiana Co. deeds and agreements running from 1824 to 1839. About 1839, Jacob Houtz went to Portage Twp., later a part of Ottawa Co., Ohio, and died there sometime in 1840. His son, William, acted as administrator; later, in 1847, in Mahoning Co., Jacob's grandson, William, acted as administrator for some unsettled matters, which were finally settled in Mahoning Co. Supreme Court about 1854.

424 Jacob Houtz, b. 20 Oct. 1803, Pa.; prob. Franklin Co.; d. 29 Sept. 1867, Canton, Stark Co., Ohio; bur. West Lawn Cemetery. He is not known to have married. He received land in Green Twp., Columbiana Co., Ohio, from his parents, in 1833, but deeded it back in 1834, and received the acreage in Perry Twp., Stark Co. In 1850 and 1860, Jacob Houtz lived in hotels in Canton, Ohio, and lent money to a number of residents of that area. In will dated 25 Sept. 1867, he left $2000 to a widow, Mrs. Mary S. Dunbar, who had taken care of him during illness, and the residue to the Canton City Council, to be invested for the poor of the City of Canton, forever. This fund, now known as the Hartford-Houtz Poor Fund, is still in existence, and is used largely for the care of needy children.

Pa., 1775; d. 1858, Stark Co., Ohio; formerly widow of David Dearduff. Henry Houtz was in Cumberland County, Penna., militia, according to a list dated 4 Feb. 1793. He is believed to have been living with his father at the time of the 1790 census, and is mentioned in his father's 1796 will. He may have been the Henry Houts who was mentioned on a tax list of 1801 Neshannock Twp., Mercer Co., Pa. On 9 May 1812, he purchased a lot from Bezaleel Wells, in Canton, Stark Co., Ohio. He was living in Perry Twp., Stark Co., Ohio, at the time of the 1820 census. About the same time, he and wife Elizabeth disposed of 160 acres in sec. 34 of that twp., and purchased 160 acres in sec. 23, southeast of Canton, in Canton Twp. After the death of Henry and Elizabeth, this property passed to their son, Henry. A Caty Houtz was witness to one of these deeds, 1818/20; it is conjectured she may have been Henry's sister, or perhaps his daughter by an earlier marriage.

He was a communicant at Bindnagle's Church in 1799, and at various later dates. In 1810, he was living in East Hanover Twp., Dauphin Co., Penna., in an area which apparently later became part of Lebanon Co. By September 1816, John Houtz had gone to Philadelphia. John Snock (Snoke) and John Maulfair of Anvil (Annville) Twp., Lebanon Co., farmers, were designated attorneys to sell 29½ acres of land for John Houtz in Hanover Twp. By 1820, John Houtz was back in East Hanover Twp., apparently married a third time, and had additional children. Some years later, he was a resident of Londonderry Twp. John, or his son of the same name, may have been the Houtz who had the first store and tavern at Campbellstown, in Londonderry Twp.

4(10) JOHN WILLIAM HOUTZ, (son of Philip Lawrence), b. 17 Oct. 1786, bpt. Shippensburg, Pa., Reformed Church; thought to have d. before 1830. One record indicates his wife may have been Nancy _____, b. 1790, in Pa.; another can be interpreted that his wife d. before 1820, leaving him with two sons and one dau. Perhaps he m. twice. He appears to have been married about 1810, in that year living with his wife in Lurgan Twp., Franklin Co., Pa. He is believed to have lived near his brother, John Houtz, in 1820, in East Hanover Twp., Lebanon Co., Pa. In 1850, Nancy Houtz was living in Upper Paxton Twp., Dauphin Co., Pa., with a Christopher & Amanda Fox family, nr. Millersburg. Although there is uncertainty due to scanty records, the following are thought to be children of John William Houtz:

4(10)1 William Houtz, b. abt. 1812, Pa.; d. after 1880, prob. Wayne Twp., Crawford Co., Pa.; m. abt. 183_, Mary Stockdon, b. 1813, Pa.; d. after 1899, possibly desc. of Robert Stockdon family who were res. of Cumberland Co., 1790. In 1840, William Houtz and family were living in Upper Paxton Twp., Dauphin Co., Pa. He was a communicant at St. David's Reformed Church, Killinger, 9 Apr. 1843. Magdalena Houtz, communicant there 1841, may have been his wife, or possibly his sister. Some time after this, William took his family to Wayne Twp., Crawford Co., Pa., where he was a leading member in a U. B. Church which was organized there 1848. It is likely that William was a farmer and drover, dealing with Lancaster, Pa., and considered possible that he lived there a short time. Children:

4(10)11 Henry Houtz, b. 1836, Dauphin Co., Pa.; d. abt. 1916; m. Phoebe J. Stockdon or Stockton, b. Pa., 1839. Was farmer and cattle buyer for Armour and Swift Packing Cos. Children: Delmar, Anna, Effie, Jeanette, Albert, Theodore, Nannie, and Henry Ellis Houtz. Res. Wayne & East Fairfield Twps., Crawford Co., Pa.

4(10)12 James Houtz, b. 1837, Pa., prob. Dauphin Co.; res. 1860, Wayne Twp., Crawford Co., Pa.

4(10)13 William Houtz, b. 1838, Pa., prob. Dauphin Co.; d. 21 Jan. 1908, San Diego, Cal.; m. Miss Lottie Waldo, Crawford Co., Pa., who d. 2 July 1879; divorced 23 Oct. 1875; m. 2nd, Mary F. McCormick, who d. Jan. 1877; m. 3rd, 25 Feb. 1884, in Leadville, Colo., Laura G. Van Loon, b. Wapello, Louisa Co., Iowa. It was her second marriage, her first having been in 1873 to Robert S. Kendall, divorced 1883, Wapello, Iowa. Laura re-married after the death of William Houtz. Wm. & Laura had children Stewart B. and Gladys L. Houtz, b. 1886 and 1888 at Blackfoot, Bingham Co., Idaho. William Houtz was a 2nd Lieut. in Co. K, 150 Pa. Inf., Civil War.

4(10)2 John Houtz, b. abt. 1814, Pa.; d. after 1860; m. Nancy ____, b. 1816, Pa.; d. after 1860. Res. 1850, Delaware Twp., Juniata Co., Pa. In 1860, they disposed of 14 acres of land in Delaware Twp., left Pennsylvania, and later the same year, were res. of Kent, Stephenson Co., Ill. Children:

4(11) PHILIP HOUTZ, (believed to be son of Philip Lawrence), b. abt. 1788; d. prob. in vic. of Ava, Point Rock, or Lee Centre, Oneida Co., N.Y. As previously indicated, Philip and Mary Houtz disposed of a lot on the south side of Market St. in Centreville, now called Carrollton, Ohio, in April, 1831. It is not known if this refers to Mary (Polly) Ritz, whom he m. 17 Mar. 1814, in Columbiana Co., or not, as he is said to have married a Mary Larrabee, bur. at Lee Centre, Oneida Co., N.Y. It is believed that Philip Houtz, Mary, and their son Philip, b. Ohio, abt. 1830, went to Oneida Co., N.Y. about 1831, or perhaps to an adjacent county.

Children of Philip and Mary (Ritz or Larrabee) Houtz:

4(11)1 Philip Houtz, b. abt. 1830, Ohio; d. at Buffalo, N.Y., 22 Dec. 1889; m. Adeline Olcott, b. N.Y.; d. 22 March 1900.
4(11)2 Charles Houtz, b. 1832, N.Y.; said to be bur. at Ava or Point Rock, N.Y.; m. Hannah _____, b. 1834, Mass.; in 1870, they were living, at least temporarily, in Clay Twp., Ottawa Co., Ohio, possibly having gone there to visit relatives. Some years later, another Charles Houtz, son of 4212 John Houtz, lived in Clay Twp., and should not be confused with this one. Charles, b. N.Y., is said to have been a violinist. Children of Charles & Hannah:
4(11)21 Cornelius Houtz, b. 1854, N.Y.
4(11)22 Mary Houtz, b. 1861, N.Y.

OFFICIAL BUSINESS

The Annual Meeting of the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research was held on September 8, 1956 in the regular meeting room on the third floor of the Detroit Public Library.

At that time Mr. Lot A. Merrill, Treasurer, gave the following report:

Balance on hand September 1955	$ 536.89
Receipts for the year 1955-1956	1730.28
	$2267.17
Expenses for the year 1955-1956	$1494.58
Balance on hand September 1956	$ 772.59

The Editor, Mrs. Wilson McTeer, reported that Volume XIX of the DSGR Magazine had presented, in four quarterly issues, 184 pages of genealogical material received from 37 members living in 10 different states. This material included eight family histories, sixteen installments of local records, Bible records from nineteen families, as well as features, queries and news. The total cost of producing and mailing the Magazine during the past year came to $1082.72.

The Records Committee, Mrs. M.H.S. Hicks Chairman, reported that all charts from members are now re-indexed and are available for consultation through the files of the Burton Historical Collection.

The Publications Committee, Mrs. Ralph Franklin Chairman, reported that sales of the new membership lists had more than offset cost of production, and that a slight additional profit had been realized from sales of indexes and from a booklet on Michigan genealogical resources which the committee set up for Michigan State Library.

The Research Committee, Mrs. Edgar Montgomery Chairman, for some time now has been collecting data on what census records are available where. As soon as practicable, they plan to make their results available to the membership of the Society.

At the close of the meeting the Society officers were installed for the coming year: President, Mr. George R Raub, Sr.; Vice-President, Mr. Keith H. Etcher; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Milford H. S. Hicks; Recording Secretary, Miss Olive Lewis; Treasurer, Mr. Lot A. Merrill; and Editor, Mrs. Wilson McTeer.

John Worland, Immigrant to Maryland

"December the 10th, 1672. Came John Worland of Charles County and proved his right to fifty acres of land for his transporting of himself into this province in anno 1662." This is the earliest date mentioned in Maryland documents concerning John Worland, but it is 8 years later than other records mentioning this name. Among others, head rights were claimed for one John Worland by William Jerny in 1664 in Lower Norfolk Co., Virginia. Family tradition states that the first Worland came to Maryland in the train of a Lord Baltimore; the third Lord Baltimore came to Maryland in 1662. Were there two John Worlands?

In his will probated 1701, John Worland left to his son John, b. Charles Co., Md., 1685, at majority his entire estate except that in event of his death unmarried or without issue, "New Allsford" would be left to the Protestant minister of William and Mary Parish and "Docker's Delight" to Thomas Whichaley who was appointed guardian of John during minority. Little more is known of him except that he had a wife named Rachel, and a second named Stacey Robey, daughter of John and Sarah Robey.

Ancestors of one Robey Worland, who was living in Prince George's Co., Md. in 1776, are unidentified. His descendants used the name Wornall and a genealogical record of that family has been written by Francis Clay Wornall and is deposited with the DAR Chapter records at Paris, Kentucky.

In 1754 John Worland, b. approx. 1720 and grandson of the immigrant, made a quitclaim deed to "New Allsford", proving direct descent. In 1776 he was living in Prince George's Co., Md. where he took the Oath of Fidelity and Support to that state and performed service in the Revolutionary War. He later resided in Montgomery County and in Washington Co., Md. where he died in 1790. His will named John Robey, Charles, Anastasia, Eleanor m. John Adams, Henry, William, James, Thomas, Walter, Barnabas, Lucy m. George Laws, and Rebecca m. John P. Newton. Mary Worland shown in the 1776 Census was not named in the will so appears to have been deceased. His 1st or 2nd wife was Rebecca ----; his last wife was Mary Brady who was the mother of the last five children.

Charles in Montgomery County and William Worland in Washington Co., Md. had become heads of families by 1790.

Between 1790-1801, Worlands of this family migrated to Kentucky with a group of Catholic families, including the Mudds, the Leakes, and the Goughs. Henry and William settled in Washington County, Barnabas in Scott County, and Thomas in Woodford County. By this time the family was Catholic and began giving many of its daughters to the convent.

In 1827, Thomas, b. 1774, whose wife was Verlinda Hardy daughter of Solomon and Rachel (Livers) Hardy, followed his son Leo to Shelby Co., Ind. accompanied by his 13 other children and the families of his sisters Lucy Laws and Rebecca Newton. There he gave land for St. Vincent's church erected in 1836 at a cost of $619.

Barnabas went to Monroe Co., Mo. about 1839. His wives were Theresa Hardy and Cecelia Gough, daughter of John B. and Catherine (Deering) Gough.

One William Worland, b. 1761 is known to have had a son Charles Brooks Worland who married Martha Ann White (properly Wight) and migrated to Montgomery Co., Mo., date unknown. This family intermarried frequently with the Shockley family. Three of the sons of Charles Brooks Worland married sisters, daughters of Joseph and Mary Ann (Mudd) Blacklock: Charles Benedict m. Elizabeth, Stephen Willis m. Sarah Eleanor "Nell", and Silias Leo m. Mary "Polly".

Worland, Bates Co., Missouri was founded by Harry Worland whose ancestors are unknown and by Archibald Simms whose mother was Elizabeth Worland.

Worland, Wyoming was founded by Charles Henry Worland a descendant of William above. Charles was a cattle drover, tavern keeper, and in general a colorful and interesting man.

Except for a few recent immigrants everyone in the United States bearing the name Worland seems to belong to this family. A Worland history is being written and exchange of information would be welcomed by Miss Olive Lewis, 12033 Monica Ave., Detroit, Michigan.

BACKGROUND FOR GENEALOGY

Minnie Dubbs Millbrook

Although the language of the American Colonies was English and changed only in minor ways by the new world environment, other factors of developing American culture were more deeply influenced by the new and different surroundings. Since early colonization occurred under primitive conditions and food was a primary consideration, the colonists were under the necessity of eating whatever was available whether it was familiar or even attractive to them. Food habits are tenacious and the first-comers were not pleased with the fare they found in the new world.

The food grains with which the peoples of northwestern Europe and England were most familiar were wheat, barley and rye. A great deal of barley bread was eaten by the lower classes in England, but the preference of all Englishmen was wheat bread. However, the wheat and other seeds brought from England did not mature well and the colonists were forced to turn to the Indian corn. Its abundance and nourishing qualities not only saved the colonist's lives but altered their manner of cooking and their tastes in food. Some of these Indian dishes are still known by the Indian names - hominy, pone and succotash. A thick corn-meal and milk porridge quickly became a standard article of the colonial table and, in some families, comprised the entire menu for both breakfast and supper. This dependence on corn did not alter. As settlement progressed ever westward over the land, corn was always the first food crop grown. Now corn is a somewhat old fashioned American food. It is still more widely used in the South, which has been less affected by later-coming immigrants.

While corn remained the first bread of the frontiersman, wheat came along soon and in time white bread for all became one of the economic goals of the United States. At present three times as much wheat is eaten as corn although more corn is still grown, it being the principal food for animals. Whereas all the wheat appears on the table as bread or cereal, corn appears in many ways: cornbread, hominy, mush, canned tortillas, tamales, fritters, corn syrup, cornstarch, pop corn and green corn. Among the other food grains, rice stands third and oats fourth. Oats were popular with the Scotch. The increasing demand for rye bread in later years may be attributed to the immigrations of Swedes, Germans, etc.

Other native foods that the colonists found were squashes, melons, native nuts, blueberries, huckleberries, cranberries, maple syrup and new kinds of beans. Boston baked beans originated with the Indians who baked them in earthen pots much as they are baked today. Sweet potatoes came into early use in Carolina. Potatoes had to be carried to Europe and imported again to the new world before they were much eaten. The New England colonists were suspicious of them and it was only when the Scotch-Irish came in the early part of the eighteenth century that they became popular. Native sweetenings available at first were maple syrup or honey and they were much used before sugar was imported. The taste for them still remains, and waffles and maple syrup are still considered a typical American dish.

Tomatoes are another example of a food that had many experiences before ending up in America to become one of its standard comestibles. Originally American, it was taken to Spain and grown experimentally for its ornamental qualities. The Italians found out it was not poisonous and used it so profusely that it is to wonder how they ever managed without it. It came to the United States in mid-eighteenth century and grew slowly in popularity. Now it is one of our standard foods. Tomato juice, catsup or ketch-up are found in every roadside cafe or hot dog stand. Next to potatoes it is our most versatile and omnipresent vegetable.

In cookery, the American way has always leaned towards simplicity - the best of materials prepared in the readiest way. Elaborate systems of cookery as used by the French and Italians have been imported; and while they add to the variety, our taste, fostered by the dearth of domestic labor, still relies on an abundance of food stuffs, easily prepared. Later immigrants have brought new foods or rather recipes that have been added to the American menu, rather than supplanting the items already there. Spaghetti and macaroni are other forms of wheat. Chili is only a new form of beans. Liverwurst puts into preservable condition a part of the animal that formerly had to be eaten fresh. The American diet has the variety of every national strain that has entered our blood stream. Take the potato: while the Englishman eats his boiled and the Frenchman fries his, the American has his both ways as well as mashed, creamed, scalloped and hashed brown. Potato chips are almost a national dish.

A LETTER TO JENNY HUNTER

Dear Jenny:

Your latest question is again a real challenge -- so, on to Ontario! Aside from a very few French close to Montreal and some refugees around Fort Niagara, the close of the Revolutionary War marks the beginning of settlement in this important Province in our great neighboring country of Canada. Settlement began with the influx of Loyalists into the land -- early enough so that 10 thousand were counted in 1783. Until that time, Canada seemed destined to be a French colony under the British crown; but the Loyalist refugees brought the demand for British institutions and British law; they created two new English-speaking provinces in New Brunswick and Ontario; and one Canadian historian calls the Loyalists "the Pilgrim Fathers" of Canada.

The British government recognized its obligation to the thousands of persons who had lost homes and property by remaining loyal to the King and they offered these Loyalists land in the Canadian provinces, together with food, clothing, tools and equipment. Military veterans were recompensed by a sliding scale of from 200 acres for a private to 5,000 acres for certain field officers. An ax and a hand-saw to each family; a whipsaw and a crosscut saw to each two families; a firelock to each five families, later to each head of a family; "two sizes of augurs" -- the details of the help given the settlers are the family traditions of today. Widows and adult males were all entitled to "location tickets" -- which became desirable means of exchange. Since the "location ticket" was transferable, it was sometimes sold for a pittance to cover an immediate need. This was a situation occurring again and again in frontier communities.

A definite effort was made to relocate these "displaced persons" in communities made up of old neighbors or fellow-soldiers. Thus we find whole communities of Butler's Rangers near Niagara; the Dutch, the Scots and the Palatines from the Mohawk Valley; Mennonites at Kitchener (first called Berlin); Pennsylvania Quakers in separate groups; Connecticut Loyalists around Brockville; Presbyterians around London; the Indians of the Six Nations at Brantford; etc. Some of these settlers came by boat down the St. Lawrence; up Lake Champlain and the Richelieu River; and by other routes -- but the great majority followed the paths of the Indians from Albany to Fort Stanwix to Oswego or Niagara and then across the lake or up the rivers. A study of the county histories often gives you valuable leads as to where to look for ancestors who left North Carolina or Pennsylvania or other parts of the 13 colonies.

In 1789 a directive ordered a list made up of those persons or families who had adhered to the unity of the Empire and had joined the Royal standard in America before the treaty of separation in 1783. The words "the Unity of the Empire" caused this list to be called the "U.E.List" and the persons the "U.E.Loyalists" -- hence the U.E.L. in Canada is a group today which many Canadians hold in high honor.

The acquisition of land was made so easy during the late 1780's, we have "late Loyalists" coming from the States, possibly drawn by the offer of free land, rations, etc. The "late Loyalists" never achieved the distinction accorded the U.E.L. Governor Simcoe did much to advertise the advantages of this part of the country and over thirty thousand immigrants in five years resulted. He was the first governor of the newly-created province of Upper Canada which was separated from Lower Canada or Quebec in 1791, and he also did much to encourage roads and communication. Cheaper land in Ontario and the lack of Indian troubles attracted many from the States, as well as from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and from the British Isles. The Loyalist was important in the founding of Ontario, because the land itself was an important refuge to him. After 1815, the American immigration slackened. Then as time went on, many an Ontario family packed up and came to the States. Many a small farmer brought household goods and a team of horses, duty-free, and headed for Chicago or the wheat fields of the Great Plains or Michigan. Over the years, there has been much migration back and forth across the border -- and it still goes on. Hence, you never know just where an Ontario connection may lead you. Maybe your Ontario grandmother "moved across the river" from Detroit to the Thames River area; maybe she married a Pennsylvania Quaker who "made affirmation" instead of swearing allegiance; maybe she was an Irish lass with Colonel Talbot, the road-builder; but very likely, she's going to be hard to track down unless you have a lot of family data to start with.

As for the mechanics of searching, we find many differences to which we must accustom ourselves. To begin with, only the earliest census records are open. 1861 was made available very recently. To secure information, it's mighty helpful to be able to prove lineal descent from the person whose record you are hunting.

The very first census records were made by the French and covered mostly Lower Canada. In 1831, the census data showed the head of the household and the number of dependents, the number of servants and the location of property -- and sometimes ownership. More detail on ages comes with 1841, 1851 and 1861 census tallies. Lately, a census has been taken every five years, but since you usually have to wait a hundred years to examine the record, you may not find it very useful.

The "old reliables" of land and probate records are most prolific in data, when found, but they are available only through a solicitor or barrister, for a fee. Since some of the old wills were written in Latin or mediaeval French, it's just as well to have someone familiar with such records doing the abstracting.

The County Registrar is the custodian of wills and land records; his "County Registry" office is sometimes in the Court House with the courts and sometimes in a separate "County House" in the county seat or "county town". It is most important to have a working knowledge of the locations of the persons whose records you are seeking. If it is a will, you should know where the testator died, where his last permanent residence was, and where his will was filed. Occasionally, you will find land records filed in counties other than the site of the property.

A valuable reference tool on county locations is the Municipal Directory published yearly by the Minister of Municipal Affairs. Ontario contains 43 counties and 11 districts -- a district usually being an area in the northern part of the Province which hasn't "grown up" to be a county. Also in Ontario you will find "joint counties" -- that is, counties that are separate physically but for recording purposes have but one set of offices and officers. These are the county seats to watch: Cornwall for Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry Counties; Cobourg for Durham and Northumberland; Brockville for Leeds and Grenville; Napanee for Lennox and Addington; and L'Orignal for Prescott and Russell.

The Municipal Directory gives statistics on population, roads, etc. besides the names and addresses of the important officials: Mayor or Reeve; Clerk; Treasurer; Assessment Commissioner or Assessor; Engineer or Road Superintendent.

The provincial county was usually divided into townships, then into concessions and lastly into lots. A concession was usually about $1\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{1}{2}$ miles in area and when you find the term "broken front concession", you will find it located on a major river or lake. Smaller governmental units are towns, villages or "police villages" (not incorporated).

Most vital records are not made public until they are a hundred years old. They are kept in the Vital Statistics branch of the provincial Department of Health and Welfare and again, it will help to be descended from the man whose record you are seeking.

Many times you will find help in the church records, particularly for the Anglican and Catholic churches. The "United Church" is the present-day name for groups formerly called Methodist; some of their records may be found at the Victoria College in Toronto. Another suggestion concerns funeral directors' records, which are sometimes prolific. If you have an obituary, naming the funeral director, this may be helpful.

Newspapers can be very good, particularly those that have been established for a long time. Many papers are microfilming their old files and usually their files are pretty complete. These are sometimes found with the Carnegie Library.

I think I would seek advice first from a local historical society, if I had an Ontario problem -- and in doing so, I would make a very earnest effort to build good friendly public relations with the people from whom I was asking advice. Local historical societies -- in the United States, as well as in Canada -- are much more interested in incidents concerning life in the town than in the personal details of the people who lived there. Sometimes the ancestor-hunter is in too much of a hurry for the missing date and misses the chance to make friends with the folks who can help. I believe my first line of searching on an Ontario problem would be to make a trip to the county, if possible -- or put an advertisement in the local paper -- and seriously consider joining the local historical society.

This letter covers very little on a very broad subject, but it may help you get started. We are indebted to friends for these pointers: Mr. and Mrs. Keith Etcher of Windsor have supplied most of the data, with an "assist" from Miss Edith Jarvi of the Carnegie Library in Windsor; and with you, I say "thank you" to them.
